

Sans Parapluie Turns Old Wardrobes into Pieces of Art

Photos: SansParapluie.com

Funny how with a touch of creativity, an old piece of furniture can not only come back to life, but also become a valuable work of art. This is the goal of Sans Parapluie, a line by Argentine artist Lucas Rise. We've seen many pieces of furniture refurbished with excellent taste before, even in Argentina: Livin Pop and Raval Warehouse are some examples.

But Lucas Rise's work goes far from that: it's not just about recycling, but about creating a whole new universe for the object.

'Nigeria' model.

'Japanese garden'.

And, Why wardrobes? "I like the verticality of wardrobes and the interaction one can have with them in their tridimensional shape. They're like habitable places", says the artist.

Even the ecological part of the recovery process (avoiding the pieces to go to the trash or keeping you from buying new furniture) is not Rise's main motivation, the artist says he does have a deep respect for wood and a conscience about the importance of recycling.

'Africa'.

'Violin'.

Apart from admiring Rise's beautiful work, these pieces can give you some ideas to give a whole new meaning to your own furniture and things laying around at home.

More about Lucas Rise and Sans Parapluie at SansParapluie.com

For more on the sustainable design and culture beat in Latin America follow me on Twitter. Latin designer with a green project? Shoot me an e-mail at paula at treehugger dot com

More on refurbished and refurbishing furniture:

Beautiful Refurbished Vintage Furniture by Livin' Pop

Find, Design Your Own Refurbished Furniture
Vintage Furniture Revamp Ideas from Raval Warehouse

